

NRSF

Contact: David Reich - National Road Safety Foundation (212) 573-6000 cell (914) 325-9997 david@reichcommunications.com

FARGO, ND POLICE OFFICER WINS NATIONAL "INNOVATION IN THE CLASSROOM" AWARD

Honored by peers at national police conference

NEW YORK, July 17, 2012 -- Officer Rachel Jordan Officer Jordan shows her class how a radar gun works. of the Fargo, North Dakota Police Department has been Each students uses the gun and "catch" speeders. A beat named the winner of the 2012 NASRO/National Road officer makes traffic stops based on the speeds the Safety Foundation "Innovation in the Classroom students get, and they later calculate mean and median Award." The award, which was presented at the national speeds and learn to plot charts that display the data meeting of NASRO (National Association of School they've collected. Class discussions include why some Resource Officers) in Reno, Nev. on July 16, recognizes times of day have faster speeds than others and the innovative teaching of traffic safety in schools by a importance of having a proper following distance school resource officer (SRO). It carries with it a $1,000 honorarium for the police department and Carl Ben Eielson Middle School, where she teaches.

to engage young people with a fun and fast-paced Award" at the NASRO national conference, where some curriculum that gets students outside of the traditional 800 police officers and school administrators convened. classroom environment. Her winning program, "Math in She gave a presentation of her winning lesson plan to Action: Speeders Beware," ties into the 8th grade math curriculum and graphically demonstrates the importance of obeying posted speed limits.

receive a series of worksheets. They then meet with Officer Jordan at a busy street that is next to the school and others. and they see demonstrations that show the stopping aggression, drinking and driving, and drowsy driving. distance of a car at various speeds.

drivers, simply don't realize how long it takes to stop a information, visit www.nrsf.org. car," she said. "They often don't believe me until they see it for themselves, and they are astounded."

between cars.

The mother of four says she thoroughly enjoys her work as an SRO. She was honored with the NASRO/National In her five years as an SRO, Officer Jordan has worked Road Safety Foundation "Innovation in the Classroom fellow school resource officers.

For 50 years, The National Road Safety Foundation (NRSF), a non-profit organization, has created driver After the students learn the relevant math in class, they education programs for free distribution to schools, police, traffic safety agencies, youth advocacy groups NRSF has programs on speed and Its newest programs, "Generation tXt" and "Stay in the Picture", address distracted driving and prom and "I have found that many students, including many new summer driving safety aimed at young people. For more

> The National Road Safety Foundation, Inc. 18 East 50th Street New York, NY 10022 Toll Free 866-SAFEPATH (723-3728) / (212) 837-4854 Fax (212) 837-4870 www.nrsf.org / info@nrsf.org